

Dear Sir/Ma'am,

Hope you and your loved ones are doing well and keeping safe. I understand that due to the Coronavirus situation, your students' summer internships may have become a cause of concern for you. I wanted to let you know that Internshala is with you in this hour of need and we are working tirelessly to minimize the impact of Covid-19 on students' careers. In particular, there are two initiatives we are focusing on –

1. Work from home internships - Companies across India have embraced the work from home culture and work from home internships (or online internships) are also rising in demand. As of now, there are 10,000+ work from home internship vacancies listed on Internshala that students can apply to and we are working to double this number. Programming, business, design, content writing, data science, engineering – work from home internships are available in almost every stream. Your students can apply to them on this link - <https://internshala.com/internships/work-from-home-jobs>
2. Online trainings – Internshala online trainings are short duration (4-8 weeks), high on quality but low on fee programs for students to learn new-age skills completely online. Each training comes with a challenging project and a training certificate at the end of it. Python, Machine Learning, Digital Marketing, Creative Writing, Financial Modeling, Business Communication Skills, Solidworks, Internet of Things, Graphic Design, Web/Android app development – there is something for a student of every stream and we are constantly adding new programs. With each online training, we are also offering students free access to a placement and interview preparation training to prepare them for jobs and internships. Students may see the details and enroll on this link - <https://trainings.internshala.com/>

I request you to please share the above information with your students as you deem fit.

Further, over the next few weeks we would be announcing several initiatives to support the T&P community to manage the training and placement needs of their students in these uncertain times, so please keep an eye on the communications you receive from us. We are committed to doing everything we can to ensure that the students of India come out of this crisis unscathed (and even stronger) and together, we can make it happen!

With best wishes!
